

TANZANIA 2022

My life forever enhanced

While I'm a seasoned leisure traveler, I suspected that my first surgical trip would be different than anything I'd experienced. The 24-hour "commute" was tiring but not out of the ordinary. Upon landing at Kilimanjaro, however, I found myself in a decidedly different culture. New sounds, smells and customs were everywhere.

Our trip began with the wonder of my first ever safari. Seeing an array of animals in their natural habitat was a life-changing experience as well as a great way to get to know my coworkers. They are truly wonderful people, the sort of folks who would happily give up vacation time to make a stranger's life better. We found ourselves united in a common goal of doing exactly that.

As our work began, we were immersed in a similar yet unfamiliar surgical setting.

Twelve-hour days, dinner with new friends, limited sleep, then get up and do it all again. Outdated equipment, leaky plumbing, no air conditioning, and open, screenless windows. Everything was reused. The CSI surgeons made do with a much smaller list of instruments than they use at home, and cleaning those instruments was a regular part of our day. Doing more with less was a common theme.

The Tanzanian people were uniformly warm and welcoming. They knew that we were doing something that would make an enormous difference in the lives of our young patients, and they were deeply appreciative.

The sense of "making a difference" was a unifying thread for us. It explains why so many of my coworkers make the same voyage every year.

As I interacted with patients, families and Tanzanian medical personnel, I became aware that it was not just the children with disabling medical conditions whose lives became enriched through our efforts. I know I'll never look at surgery in quite the same way. The knowledge that I can manage and thrive in exhausting, challenging and unfamiliar conditions is something that I'll carry with me forever.

The relationships forged during our mission will always be treasured.

So while I signed up for this volunteer job with the hope of improving the lives of children, it was also my own life that was enhanced by this wonderful experience. I'd do it again in a heartbeat.
